2.4 Warangal and its History

SRU is situated in Warangal ''ORUGALLU'' or Ekashila Nagar, the name was given to the capital of the Kakatiya empire during that time. The fort was constructed with a single massive stone, hence the later designation of "Warangal." Pakhal Lake was built by the famous Kakatiya, Telugu ruler Ganapati Deva in the densest part of the forest to be used for farming in the future. About 3,000,000 acres are now being submerged by it. The Kakatiya kings had many plans in the works to improve people's lives in the future. They employed a wide range of engineering techniques; for example, the Ramappa temple was built on a lake, and the thousand pillar temples of Hanamkonda were built on the sandy ground; both have survived for a millennium. The Kakatiya dynasty, which ruled from 1163 to 1565, had its capital in Warangal. Fortresses, lakes, temples, and stone gates are only some of the Kakatiya dynasty's contributions to the city's status as a tourist hotspot. The state government of Telangana has placed the Kakatiya Kala Thoranam as the official emblem, and Warangal is often called the cultural capital of Telangana. Located in the state of Telangana, Warangal serves as the administrative center. With a population of around 10 Lac and an area of 406 km2 (157 sq mi), it is the second-largest city in the state of Telangana. It is one of eleven cities in India to get funding from the Government of India's Heritage City Development and Augmentation Yojana program. It was also chosen as a smart city in the "fast-track competition," giving it access to additional funding from the Smart Cities Mission to enhance municipal infrastructure and industrial prospects.

5. IPR Policy

1. RESEARCH ETHICS

The Research Ethics Policy in SRU requires all researchers to be trustworthy and open with their findings. Each campus has access to the same premium anti-plagiarism software Turnitin/iThenticate. Please refer to UGC guidelines for regulations and sanctions regarding plagiarism and read about plagiarism and its aftermath at www.plagiarism.org. SRU policies highly discourage plagiarism in any form. In addition, the institution provides researchers with digital database access to international state-of-the-artwork to ensure that the quality of the research is not compromised and that each project retains its own uniqueness in terms of the research questions it asks and the hypothesis it tests. The institution also supplies all the necessary statistical analysis software to ensure the data is robust and the results reliable. All research students are required to keep a proper research notebook in which they describe their daily research activities. Each student keeps their data in an immutable folder on the network, which is examined and evaluated on a regular basis by the research guide. If information in the notebook or electronic folder is intentionally destroyed or deleted, disciplinary action may be taken. Similarly, any researcher caught manipulating data will face severe consequences, up to and including termination.

1.1. Human trials-based research and other related policy

SRU permit research based on human trials and researchers should note that in India it is regulated by acts including The Drugs and Cosmetics Act of 1940, the Medical Council of India Act of 1956, and the Central Council for Indian Medicine Act of 1970. The following are necessary for starting a clinical trial in India:

- ☐ The DCGI's (India's) approval is required to perform any such research,
- ☐ Ethics Committee Approval in Each Country Where the Study Is Being Conducted
- ☐ Registration on the ICMR's website is also required if the study is cross boundary.

Researchers may note that in 1980, the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) released the Policy Statement on Ethical Considerations in Human Subjects Research. Rapid developments in biomedical science and technology have resulted in the emergence of new ethical dimensions, calling for an update to these recommendations. Subsequently, in 2000, the Ethical Guidelines for Biomedical Research on Human Subjects were published, with a revision published in 2006. For clinical trials in the meantime, the Central Drugs Standard Control Organization (CDSCO) published the Indian Good Clinical Practice Guidelines (2001) in 2005 and made numerous changes to the Rules under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act in 2013. Guidelines for Stem Cell Research and Therapy were originally published in 2007 by the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) and the Department of Biotechnology (DBT). SRU and their researchers should follow all ethical guidelines provided in the recent ICMR Ethical guidelines for Biomedical and Health Research involving Human participants while performing any such research.

1.2. Research result storage and data archiving

Identifying early on who will oversee archiving and destroying data and samples and establishing the methods for doing so is crucial in any research, researchers in SRU should focus on data processing with utmost care. Any research partnership agreement needs to have terms outlining the necessary arrangements for conducting the research. Researchers should keep detailed and precise records of all procedures taken, all permissions granted, all data collected, and all conclusions drawn. This is important for several reasons, including demonstrating a sound approach to research and preparing for questions about the study's methods and results. Properly maintained notebooks can be used to prove who is entitled to what inventions. Data should be stored in a way that facilitates a comprehensive audit in retrospect. Backup plans and safe data storage are vital. It's vital that you back up the original files and pictures. This is particularly important when modifying existing data or photos for better quality. When editing data or photographs, it is best to keep both the original and the modified version. Avoid simplifying or otherwise manipulating images. Secrecy is especially important when there is the potential for financial advantage. It is critical to have a reliable system for storing and retrieving research data. Primary research data must be protected in order to ensure its continued use. Before taking any data with them, researchers need to get permission from the Registrar via the department head. After publishing, the need to preserve data sources does not go away. All raw data should be recorded and stored in numbered, permanently bound laboratory notebooks, or in a specially designed electronic notebook. Cross-index the primary record with all ancillary materials (such as surveys, chart recordings, autoradiographs, and machine outputs) stored in a separate ring binder or folder. Data should be recorded into notebooks as soon as possible after being collected. The data should be uniquely identified by the date of record and/or the date of collection. Researchers should regularly have their notebooks checked and "signed-off" on by their supervisors to ensure that all relevant data is being documented. Regular backups of computer data should be made and saved in a secure yet easily accessible location, as on a disc. When it is practical to do so, a hard copy of important information should be made. Copies of the necessary software, notably the version used to process electronic data, must be kept with raw data.

1.3. Confidentiality in research and consultancy

Principal Investigators and other researchers may be required to take proprietary or otherwise restricted data, materials, software, or technology from a sponsor or other entity in the course of their work. A Non-Disclosure Agreement (NDA), Confidential Disclosure Agreement (CDA), Proprietary Information Agreement (PIA), or Confidentiality Agreement may be required of the researcher by the sponsor or third party (a firm or government body, for example). Any recipient of confidential technical information (such as proprietary technology, trade secrets, or source code) is responsible for adhering to export regulations. An export license may be needed if the data is to be sent beyond the India or shared with a foreign national, SRU researchers are advised to check this well before performing any such tasks. It is important to note that export regulated technology does not include non-technical information that has disclosure restrictions, such as sensitive financial information, company information, clinical trial/human subjects' data, or demographic information.

Several types of university agreements between the University and the sponsor or third party may include a request for confidentiality as part of their terms. Purchases and loans of hardware and software, licensing of intellectual property, data sharing, and material transfer agreements are all examples of the kind of contracts that institutions get into. The R&D Cell of SRU will be involved in these types of institutional agreements and will negotiate terms that are in line with university principles. R&D Cell will also have the only ability to sign on behalf of SRU and bind the university to the conditions of any institutional agreements they negotiate. An individual at SRU may be asked to sign such an agreement by a sponsor or third party in connection with a clinical trial or potential joint research effort in which all parties involved have a vested interest. In these scenarios, the NDA is between the individual and the sponsor or third party. To avoid having the signature associated with SRU, the researcher must sign as himself or herself. Individual researchers who intend to sign on their own behalf should seek guidance from the Office of the Dean (Research and Ranking), as sponsor or third-party NDAs often contain terms that violate SRU research policy.

1.4. Collaborations & Funded Research

Collaboration with external research peers

To maximize research output and research translation to society using complementary resources, SRU aggressively encourages cooperation with peers. It is possible for institutions from the same country to collaborate with those from other countries. Any cooperation conducted through a department or school must have clear parameters outlined in an MOU and/or research collaboration agreement. Scholars have the option of using an existing Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) or proposing a new MoU to help further their study. Scholars are free to conduct research at any number of different institutions that encourage teamwork.

Funded Research

SRU's research efforts are supported by grants and contracts from external funding agencies such as state, national, and international governments, as well as industry collaborations, consultancy projects, shared consultancy projects, and joint ventures between two institutional groups. Research funding is important since it is peer-reviewed and competitive, indicating faculty research quality. We advise scholars in collaboration with supervisor/ external researcher to apply for research funding.

1.5. Openness in research

The institute recognizes that researchers have a responsibility to protect their own academic and intellectual property rights (IPR), but it encourages them to make as much of their work available to their colleagues and the public as feasible. Research findings should not be disseminated for the sake of promoting the researcher, the institution, or the sponsor. After a paper is published, the author is responsible for making the underlying data and materials available to other researchers who contact the institute. However, the use of the information and materials, as well as the Intellectual Property Rights associated with any publications, must comply with all applicable ethical clearances and consents. The rules for getting to and from the institute through public transportation are spelled out elsewhere. Publication of research findings are expected to be delayed for an appropriate time period due to concerns over intellectual property. Publication delays of more than three months should be avoided at all costs. Researchers should exercise caution in making public any preliminary findings or work that has not been published or reviewed by their peers. Avoid using email to communicate details about pending patent applications. When available, researchers are to adhere to the standards set out by the institute's sponsoring scientific, scholarly, and other relevant professional organizations. Every researcher in SRU should be especially cognizant of health and safety standards and data protection regulations while performing any research related activities.

2. Plagiarism and abating plagiarism

According to SR University, plagiarism is "to offer work or ideas from another source as one's own, with or without authorization of the source author(s), directly by verbatim copying or by usage of any AI software" (i.e., with or without permission from the original author). In certain cases, authorization might be provided for the usage of other sources through written permission which may not be considered as plagiarism.

Self-plagiarism, a form of plagiarism, can also be committed by reusing one's own work which is published in a source without proper citation to that source. It is considered plagiarism in educational content to use someone else's idea or phrase without properly attributing the source of the work. It makes no difference if the source is an accomplished writer, another pupil, a web page without distinguished authorship, a website that sells research papers, or anyone else as well: Whether done knowingly or unintentionally, claiming credit for someone else's work is considered as a form of academic theft and is despicable in all educational environments.

2.1 Forms of plagiarism

Verbatim: Quotations must be marked with quotation marks or indentation and fully cited. The reader must know which parts are your own and which are borrowed.

2.1.1 Cut and paste: This type is defined when a person copy and paste the content from sources including internet, the list of sources must include references to Internet-derived information. Since Internet content is less likely to have been peer-reviewed, it should be carefully assessed.

2.1.2 Paraphrasing: Without proper citation, replicating someone else's work by altering a few words and rearranging the sequence in which they appear or by closely following the framework of their argument to develop another related content.

2.1.3 Collusion: This can include things like working together on a project without permission, failing to properly credit third-party assistance, or failing to adhere to guidelines for working in groups. You should know exactly how much teamwork is allowed and what responsibilities fall solely on one's shoulders.

2.1.4 Inaccurate citation: Always use the standard format for citations in the area one works in. The author should cite the sources not only at the end of the paper (in a bibliography), but also within the text itself (in a footnote). Also, one shouldn't include books, articles, or websites in the bibliography or references that you didn't consult.

2.1.5 Failure to acknowledge assistance: One should provide proper credit to any source who helped you while creating your work, whether they are classmates, lab assistants, or anyone else.

2.1.6 Auto-plagiarism (Identical submission): One must not develop or submit an assessment-related work that is already submitted either in partial or full, for a course or for any other qualification, from this university or another, electronically or manually.

2.2 Plagiarism identification and repercussion

Plagiarism is treated as a serious academic offense and SRU highly recommends its scholars to avoid plagiarism. Scholars submitting academic documents should carefully evaluate the content to avoid any sort of plagiarism.

Plagiarism will be verified in all academic documents that is being submitted by a scholar during their study. This includes thesis, research papers, conference papers and other related materials.

2.2.1 Penalties

An individual enrolled in Ph.D. Program of the University, may be subject to disciplinary action for academic misconduct only after all available appeals have been exhausted and the individual has been given sufficient time to defend himself or herself in a fair or transparent manner. The student, scholar, or supervisor should always be given the benefit of the doubt.

2.2.2 Suggested penalties for integrity issues

The Academic Integrity Committee (AIC) formed to adjudicate the plagiarism and integrity issue will be responsible for sort of penalties. They shall impose a penalty considering the severity of the Plagiarism.

a. In the case of Level 0, thesis will be passed on as per the regulations.
b. In the case of Level 1, scholar/ student will be asked to revise and resubmit within 30 days.
c. In the case of Level 2 and 3 – Necessary action will be taken and will recommend penalties as per regulations and UGC norms.

If a thesis/ research paper is found to be plagiarized after the submission, the AIC recommends, and the Vice-Chancellor approves the action as mentioned below:

- ☐ Thesis will be withdrawn from all the repositories it was submitted.
- ☐ A show cause notice will be issued to the scholar and the supervisor.
- ☐ Discipline action may be initiated against the supervisor within the rules of university.
- ☐ If the student does not cooperate, their employer, if any will be contacted and informed about the outcome of the action duly.
- ☐ University is entitled to cancel the degree/award/credit given for the course as per the regulations.

2.3 Failure to acknowledge technical assistance

Authors are expected to give credit where credit is due, whether it is to fellow students, lab assistants, or anyone else who played a role in the development of their work. While you don’t have to give credit for normal proofreading or the assistance you receive from your supervisor or boss, you do need to give credit for any other advice that significantly alters the direction or content of your work. The author may be asked to properly acknowledge the issue when it arises; nevertheless, there is no penalty for this breach. SRU encourages its faculty and scholars to properly credit all funding and other forms of assistance they may have received.

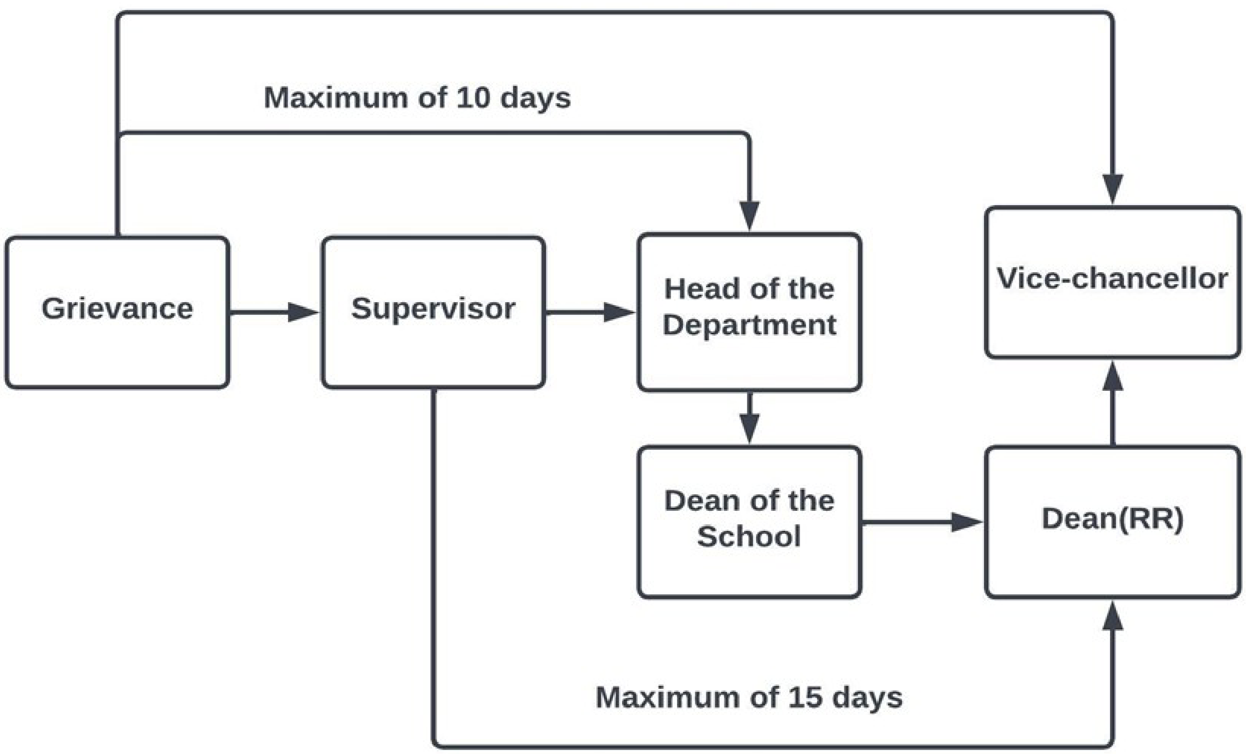
2.4 Use of content created by professional agencies or other individuals

SRU scholars are strongly discouraged from using professional/paid support and should neither use expert agencies in the production of their work nor submit material that has been written for them, even with the author's permission. It is essential to your intellectual training and development that you conduct independent investigation. This kind of violation if found guilty will be punishable equivalent to Level 3 similarity.

2.5 Grievance mechanism

Scholars who have any grievance can follow the below mechanism to get their grievances addressed duly. For all the scholars primary contact will be the supervisor who will address all the queries and provide resolution. If the resolution is not satisfied, the scholar can contact the Head of the Department who will make attempts to solve the grievance. In turn, scholars, if he/ she feels that a more appropriate resolution is needed can follow the guidelines given in the below flowchart.

2.6. Time frame



SRU will take all possible efforts to handle the grievances with confidentiality and utmost care and ensure proper resolution is provided within the stipulated time frame. Although, our efforts are sincere, some grievances may take more time than those mentioned above in the flowchart; scholars are informed to note the same.

3. Code of Conduct

The scholars of SRU should be committed to upholding the highest standards of professionalism, integrity, and ethical conduct during their course of study. This Code of

4. Sustainable Development Goals Policy

The university has taken significant strides in addressing the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) by integrating sustainability principles across its academic, operational, and research initiatives. Through its curriculum and courses, SRU educates and empowers students to become advocates for sustainable practices, equipping them with the knowledge and skills needed to tackle global challenges. Additionally, the university has implemented various eco-friendly practices on campus, such as adopting renewable energy sources and no plastic usage. Further, SRU has integrated sustainability into its academic curriculum, fostering a culture of awareness and responsibility among students and faculty. The university also collaborates with local communities to tackle societal challenges. By fostering a culture of sustainability and emphasizing social and environmental responsibility, the university is making a substantial and positive impact on global efforts to attain the SDGs and create a more sustainable future. Research at SRU primarily focuses on SDG goals and scholars are advised to take up quality research to serve humanity.

1) All intellectual property rights invented, made, or created by a SRU employee or student in the course of his or her duties and activities of employment will normally belong to SRU.

2) If a SRU employee creates Intellectual Property outside of the normal course of his or her duties with significant use of University Resources, he or she is deemed to have agreed to transfer the IP Rights in such Intellectual Property to SRU in exchange for the use of University Resources.

ii) Employees pursuing research activities at other institutions

1) An agreement between SRU and the other University governs rights to Intellectual Property developed during an academic visit by an employee of SRU to another University. Unless otherwise specified in an agreement, the IP developed during the visit belongs to the other University if the SRU's IP Rights are not impaired.

iii) Non-employee

1) Visiting Researchers must transfer any Intellectual Property they produce in the course of their activities arising from their affiliation with SRU to the University. For the purposes of this Policy, such individuals will be treated as SRU employees.

iv) Students

Students who are not employed by SRU retain ownership of all Intellectual Property and related IP Rights created during their studies. The following exceptions, however, will apply.

1) SRU will claim ownership of all Intellectual Property developed by postgraduate (doctoral) students in the course of their study.

2) Students will be offered the option of assigning IP Rights to SRU and will be given the same rights as any employee Inventor as outlined in this Policy. Students should follow the procedures outlined in this Policy in these situations.

3) Regardless of the use of University Resources, all rights in Copyrighted Works are owned by their creators.

4) If SRU is unable to exploit any Intellectual Property to which it has a claim, it must notify the Inventor as soon as possible (s). At least one month prior to any conduct or intentional omission that could jeopardize the ability to acquire protection, the notification must be made. The Inventor(s) will have the option to purchase related IP Rights in such cases; however, SRU will be entitled to a share of the income from any subsequent exploitation of the Intellectual Property to the extent that SRU's verified expenditures in connection with the protection and commercialization of such IP are equal to or greater than SRU's verified expenditures in connection with such IP protection and commercialization. SRU may alternatively request a perpetual non-exclusive royalty-free license for research purposes, with no right of commercial exploitation or sub-licensing. On a case-by-case basis, SRU may be entitled to a portion of any net income created by the Inventor(s) as a result of the commercialization of the Intellectual Property. SRU will not unduly withhold or delay an assignment of IP Rights to the Inventor(s); but it has the right to postpone exploitation if it is in its best interests.

5) Any requests for SRU to transfer rights to the Inventors(s) or any other third party should be directed first to SRU's IPR Policy Committee.

10. CONFLICT OF INTEREST AND CONFIDENTIALITY

i) As an employee of SRU, a Researcher's primary commitment of time and intellectual contributions should be to SRU's educational, research, and academic programmes.

ii) Unauthorized use of a business secret that could harm or jeopardize SRU's lawful financial, commercial, or market interests qualifies as a business secret. When communicating with third parties, researchers must take all reasonable precautions to ensure confidentiality.

iii) Researchers must quickly report any possible or current conflict of interest to SRU's IPR Policy Committee in order to establish a satisfactory solution for all parties involved.

iv) If there is any doubt about a conflict of interest or confidentiality issue, researchers should consult the person or members of the IPR Policy Committee.

11. IDENTIFICATION, DISCLOSURE AND COMMERCIALIZATION OF INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

i) SRU encourages its researchers to find research outcomes that have the potential to be commercialized and that can help SRU's reputation by bringing them to the public's attention.

ii) Before publishing any draught publications containing scientific results, researchers must present them in writing to the relevant Head of Department and state in writing that, to the best of their knowledge, such works do not contain any results for which protection can be obtained or which can be exploited in any way.

iii) Researchers, including staff, students, and Visiting Researchers, must disclose all Intellectual Property that falls within the scope of the agreement.

iv) SRU IPR Policy Committee to be in charge of protecting and commercializing SRU's intellectual property. However, the inventor(s) must be consulted at every stage of the method.

Inventors are expected to disclose all potentially exploitable Intellectual Property as soon as they become aware of it, because the protection and successful commercialization of Intellectual Property may rely on fast and efficient administration. The disclosure must be made in writing by completing the Intellectual Property Disclosure Form, which can be obtained from SRU's Research Office.

vi) If the disclosure is incomplete, the form may be returned to the inventor(s) with a request for additional information. The date of disclosure is the day when SRU's Research Office gets the full disclosure signed by all Inventors.

vii) If an Inventor is unsure whether an Intellectual Property comes within the scope or is potentially economically exploitable, the Inventor should submit a disclosure to SRU's Research Office for review before making the Intellectual Property public.

viii) If the disclosure is incomplete, the form may be returned to the Inventor(s) with a request for additional information. The date of disclosure is the day when SRU's Research Office gets the full disclosure signed by all Inventors.

ix) Premature disclosure may jeopardize intellectual property protection and commercialization. Researchers must make reasonable attempts to identify Intellectual Property early in the research process and examine the implications of any public disclosure to avoid any possible benefits being lost.

x) All disclosures must be reported to the relevant Head of Department by the Research Office. A brief description of the Intellectual Property as well as the name of the Inventor are included in the notification (s).

xi) SRU's IPR Policy Committee is responsible for determining if any agreements provide for the sharing of IP Rights or other obligations that are in addition to those outlined in this policy. Provisions of related Research Agreements may require the assignment of certain IP rights in full or in part. In case of assignment, the procedure for protection and commercialization shall be governed by a separate agreement concluded between SRU and other concerned parties. In all other cases the procedure set out in this Policy shall apply.

xii) Following the date of disclosure, SRU shall promptly begin evaluating the Intellectual Property through the person or department selected by SRU. A pre-evaluation will be carried out as a first step to identify any major hurdles that may obstruct the protection and commercialization of the Intellectual Property. A recommendation on whether to protect and exploit the Intellectual Property should be sent to the person or committee making the final decision on behalf of SRU based on the results of the pre-evaluation. Within one week after the date of disclosure, such a recommendation must be forwarded. The final decision must be made within 10 days of the disclosure date Research Office.

xiii) IPR Policy Committee shall appoint a person or department to conduct a comprehensive examination of the Intellectual Property, with a focus on possible methods of Intellectual Property protection and business opportunities.

xiv) The Inventor(s) must be notified of the decision in writing within 7 days of the decision date. If SRU decides not to commercialize the Intellectual Property that has been revealed.

xv) The Inventor(s) must work closely with SRU's Research Office, the patent attorney, and any other professional specialists engaged. By sharing information, attending meetings, and advising on development, inventors are obligated to provide reasonable help in preserving and commercially developing the Intellectual Property.

xvi) As part of the review process, IPR Policy Committee and the Inventor(s) must jointly identify an appropriate commercialization strategy within 3 weeks or 30 days, whichever comes first from the date of Research Office decision. The plan will lay out the responsibilities of each entity involved in the commercialization process and set timelines for certain actions.

xvii) SRU's IPR Policy Committee is responsible for carrying out the commercialization strategy, and it must present specific proposals, such as draught agreements or business plans, to SRU's Vice-Chancellor for approval.

xviii) Commercial decisions, such as the conditions of an assignment/licensing agreement or the development of a spin-off firm, shall be made on a case-by-case basis by IPR Policy Committee taking into account all circumstances.

xix) Shall apply if SRU decides to stop, withdraw, or not maintain a granted or registered right. SRU will nominate a person or committee to make such decisions.

xx) SRU is responsible for all expenses incurred in connection with the protection and commercialization of Intellectual Property.

xxi) Under a confidentiality agreement, the entire description of the Intellectual Property will be revealed to third parties during the evaluation and commercialization period.

12. RECORDING AND MAINTENANCE OF SRU'S INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY PORTFOLIO

i) SRU's Research Office is responsible for maintaining accounting records for each Intellectual Property. The office is responsible for ensuring that the Intellectual Property is recorded in accounting records, that any costs spent are paid on time, and that exploitation income are distributed.

ii) SRU's Research Office is responsible for keeping accurate and detailed records of SRU's Intellectual Property. It will keep track of payment deadlines for duties connected to the upkeep of protected intellectual property and will notify SRU's IPR Policy Committee as soon as possible.

13. DISTRIBUTION OF REVENUES, MOTIVATION OF RESEARCHERS

i) The apportionment of net income arising from the exploitation of any intellectual property, whether this accrues directly to SRU or as a result of royalty or similar payments, will be on the scale set out below, subject to the signing of a confirmatory Assignment from the inventors. SRU reserves the right to modify this in cases where it becomes necessary to do so, and can be fully justified, subject to approval by the Vice-Chancellor.

ii) The term "net revenue" refers to all license fees, royalties, and other payments received by SRU as a result of the commercialization of Intellectual Property, less any expenses incurred in connection with SRU's protection and commercialization of Intellectual Property.

iii) In some cases, SRU reserves the right to negotiate special revenue distribution terms, such as when income is generated through the sale of shares or the payment of a dividend on shares allocated to SRU in an entity to which the Intellectual Property is licensed or assigned but which is not a spin-off enterprise.

iv) If there are many Inventors, the Inventor's share is divided among them in a proportion that matches their respective contributions as stated in the signed Invention-Disclosure Form.

v) In the case of trademark and other indicator exploitation, the Inventor(s) may profit from the revenue as set forth in an individual agreement, taking into account the proportion of their participation to the exploitation. Such matters will be decided on a case-by-case basis by SRU's IPR Policy Committee.

vi) In the event that a spin-off company is formed, an individual stock share agreement between SRU and the Inventor(s) must be reached. The terms of the agreement will be negotiated on an individual basis, taking into account the Inventors' contribution to any further development and exploitation beyond the creation of Intellectual Property, as well as any funding provided by the Inventor(s), SRU, or any third parties acquiring a share of equity in the new venture. The IPR Policy Committee on behalf of SRU will make the decision about the conditions of a spin-off establishment.

14. BREACH OF THE RULES OF THIS POLICY

Members of the IPR Policy Committee will be in charge of dealing with any violations of this policy. Breach of this Policy's terms will be dealt with through SRU's customary processes, which are laid out in accordance with the applicable legal regulations.

I5. DISPUTE AND APPEALS

In the first instance, any conflicts must be resolved amicably by the IPR Policy Committee. One week after the concern is submitted, a decision will be made. In addition to the foregoing, the relevant sections of law shall apply to any legal issue arising in connection with the rules of this Policy.

16. FILING AFFILIATION: All IPR filings should have affiliation of university mentioned as "SR University, Warangal, Telangana -506371"
